PREPARING BRIEF UPON OIL LEASE

Interior Department to Send Report to Congress.

HISTORY OF PROCEEDINGS

Facts in Case Show That Government Reversed Itself Upon Main Questions Involved.

The Interior Department is preparing the information of Congress a brief of all the proceedings by the departlands in the Osage Indian reservation. Most of this information was already at hand, and had been subject to examination by persons interested in the lease. The statement to be sent to the Capitol is expected to follow this out-

Negotiations had been pending for some time in the matter of issuing the first oil lease on the Osage reservation to Edwin B. Foster, when, in March, 1896, the Commissioner of Indian Affairs sent a long letter to Hoke Smith. then Secretary of the Interior, explaining in detail the propositions made by Mr. Foster, and reviewing all points in the case from the standpoint of the office of Indian affairs

The letter had passed through the Office, and accompanying it came of the Foster lease and a bond ed in the sum of $16,000 by Edwin ter. The lease was returned to be of the Commissioner of Indian on account of protests received

An inspector and an officer of the United States army, both of whom were At Skagen, Rogestvensky received a on the ground, were asked to make care-i report that four torpedo boats without ful investigations in the matter.

Word was received some time afterward that a majority of the Osage tribe had held several councils and were in favor of the lease. Consequently, in April of the same year, the Commis-sioner of Indian Affairs returned the lease and accompanying papers with the recommendation of immediate approval of the Foster lease. The lease was approved the same day with the signatur of John M. Reynolds, acting secretary.

Indians File Protest.

Henry W. Blair, attorney for people of the Osage country, wrote a letter requesting Secretary Hoke Smith to re open the matter of the oil lease and hold it up until there could be a Congrestional investigation.

Mr. Blair's letter was referred to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for report with the result that the Government officials on the reservation were again requested to look into the matter. In August Colonel Freeman submitted his reply, which was to the effect that the lessees were apparently going ahead in good faith and that local agitators were responsible for all the trouble.

After going through the office of the Secretary of the Interior the papers were sent to the Indian office and noth-ing further on the subject came up dur-ing the Cleveland administration.

More than a year later all the paper were again sent through the office of the Secretary of the Interior and submitted to the Assistant Attorney General of the department for opinion as to the author-ity of the Secretary to reconsider and revoke the approval of the contract.

No Power to Annul.

First Assistant Attorney F. L. Campbell, now Assistant Attorney General for the Interior Department, wrote a long and careful opinion, reviewing the whole case, and stating that all facts were becase, and stating that all facts were before the department at the time the lease was made; that there were no ellegations of fraud that would justify the annulling of the contract, and concluding with the opinion that the Secretary did not have the power to do so.

Another agitation of the oil lands trouble came a snort time later, when Inspecter Nesier wrote a report asking that Foster be required to show cause why the lease should not be vacated, because Foster had not reported the discovery of oil and gas within the required time of eighteen months. Foster retime of eighteen months. Foster replied that he had reported the discovery in his quarterly report for the three months ending December 31, 1897. Colonel Freeman supplemented this with a statement that Foster had paid some royalty to the Indians and the lease was not canceled.

"Lease Is Hereby Canceled."

In June of 1898 a letter was prepared in the Indian office for the of the Secretary, reviewing the entire history of the lease and recommending that it be canceled. Secretary Bliss did that it be canceled. Secretary Bliss did not sign the letter at the time, but referred it to the Assistant Attorney General for the department. The opinion of the latter was to the effect that the lease might be canceled on the ground that the required work had not been done within the time set, but that the contract was between Foster and the Osage Indians, and that the latter should take the initiative.

Some time between then and November II, 1852, the Osage council took action recommending that the lease be declared forfeited, and on the date mentioned the lease was canceled, the following indorsement being written across the back:

"The within lease is hereby canceled,

"The within lease is hereby canceled, cated, and held for naught.
"THOS RYAN, Acting Secretary."

Department Reverses Itself.

Assistant Attorney General Willis Vandeventer prepared another opinion on the same matter in the succeeding month, the opinion, being signed by Sec retary Bliss, stating that it had been shown satisfactorily that the Secre-tary's action of November 11 was held snown satisfactorily that the Secretary's action of November II was held up on the erroneous assumption that Mr. Foster had received the citation of October 4, 1898, and had failed to respond thereto, but that it had since been shown that the letter of citation to Mr. Foster was returned by the postoffice authorities undelivered.

The opinion concluded with the statement that "the action of November II, having been taken under a misapprehension, is now recalled, vacated, and set aside." The opinion also directed that a full investigation be made to see whether the Foster company was in default in any particular.

Nothing further appears until May, when—apparently after an investigation extending from December till May—the Commissioner of Indian Affairs wrote to the Secretary of the Interior recommending that Mr. Foster and the Phenix Oil Company be permitted to continue in business, and corresponding action was taken by the department.

The commissioners in ending the report declared that their findings were not calculated to reflect on the military valor or humane sentiments of Rogest-vensky and his men.

PARIS, Feb. 25 .- The North sea inquiry | commission, which has been taking evidence to place the responsibility for the firing on English fishing boats off Dogger Bank, at its final session today announced that the evidence adduced showed that Admiral Rogestvensky's act in firing on the fishing boats when there were no torpedo boats present was unjustifiable.

This opinion was signed by a majority of the commissioners, the only dissenting voice being that of Admiral Doubassof, the Russian member of the commision. He held that the action of unknown vessels was responsible for what happened.

Reading the Decision.

The commision convened in solemn assemblage at the foreign office at 3:30 this afternoon. The room was crowded with deeply interested spectators. Immediately on the opening of the session the findings of the body were read aloud The findings consist of thirteen typewritten pages and seventeen paragaphs. The decision opened with a declaration that after careful examination of the facts the commissioners now make plain the causes, consequences, and responsi bilities for the affair.

Resume of Facts.

Then follows a resume of the facts in "It appears," says the report, "that Admiral Rogestvensky on leaving Reval took the utmost precautions against attacks, and was justified in so doing by the reports of imperial agents."

lights had been sighted, and this induced him to advance his departure twentyfour hours.

The English steamer Zero passed dif ferent sections of the squadron, the last vessel passed being the Kamchatka, which was ten miles behind the rest owing to an accident to her engines

Cause of the Tragedy.

"This," says the report, "was, per haps, incidentally, the cause of the events which followed." The opinion of the majority of the commissioners is that the responsibility for the act and its consequences fall on Regestvensky. Fire was opened on the second suspicious vessel which passed the squadron, and the firing continued without let-up for from ten to twelve minutes, doing rious damage. The majority of the commissioners realize that specific details are lacking, that are necessary to decide as to what

The majority of the commissioners are of the opinion that the Aurora and perhaps other Russian ships were retarded and provoked the fire, which was thus the result of an optical illusion. The majority think the fire lasted longer than was necessary, but that Rogestvensky did his utmost to protect the boats known to be fishing craft. They decided that under the circumstances there was sufficient uncertainty to justify Rogestvensky in continuing on his way. Nevertheless they regret he did not inform the naval powers in the channel of the fishermen's proximity to the firing and that the fishermen might require help.

squadron. This was probably due to the fact that the other vessels' commanders were preoccupied, and also to the is lation of the Kamchatka. The officers of the Kamchatka wired to Admiral Rogestvensky, telling of the damage to her engines, and also advised him that-she had been attacked by torpedo boats. Rogestvensky consequently ordered a redoubling of the vigilance.

The majority of the commissioners Mr. Warner also announced that William Halpin, of the New York County Republican Club, will be chief of staff of the first brigade of the first division, The staffs of General Howard, com-mander of the first division, and Judson Lyons, commander of the colored vigilance.

The majority of the commissioners agreed that this vigilance was not excessive for a time of war, but the fact was brought out that there was a unanimous evidence by the English witnesses at the hearing that the fifty hull fishing boats had the regulation lights, that Admiral Folkersam passed them and recognized them as inoffensive, and that, as Rogestvensky's division arrived, the fishermen fired rockets, the accepted signal.

Defendant This Side of God's Judgment.

The Swayne impeachment trial was resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, after the recess taken last evening at 5

As the Senate sitting as a court had not taken an adjournment, the usual formalities of opening the court were omitted this morning. The House managers strolled in, as did Judge Swayne and his counsel, ex-Senators Higgins and Thurston, and the trial proceeded. Counsel Thurston's speech concluded the case in behalf of his client. His associate had spoken nearly all of yes-terday afternoon, from 3 o'clock until

Prior to Mr. Higgins' address three the House managers had spoken-Mr. Perkins, Mr. Clayton, and Mr. Powers of Massachusetts. As Mr. Olmsted had previously opened the case against Swayne, this left only Managers De Armond, Smith, and Palmer to speak in conclusion of the case.

Counsel Thurston, standing at Mr. Spooner's desk on the Republican side, next to the center aisle, began his ad-dress in behalf of Swayne. The intro-ductory was in elaborate phrase and suggestion. The former Senator from Suggestion. The Nebraska said;

Thurston's Opening Words.

"Mr. President, I stand here to raise the last voice that shall be raised this side of the judgment of God in defense of the personal character of Charles Swayne. I realize the responsibility put upon me and shall feel it in all I may say. If in my ardor for my client I shall say. If in my ardor for my client I shall say things I should not say, I ask the indulgence of the Senate. If I leave unsaid the things I should say, I ask the forgiveness of this respondent."

Coursel Thurston announced he would make no criticism of the House managers or of any of the efforts they had made: but he was determined, he said to pay a good deal of attention to the witnesses who, "like coyotes, have barked at his heels through all the long night of the world with the said of the same of the sa liver, to charm the Senate and astonish posterity." Meeting the requirements of nastening to a conclusion of the case, he would merely do his best under the limitations thus imposed.

Declaring that Judge Swayne is "plready on the sunset side of the mountain of lifa," at a time when an attack on one's character is felt more keenly than an attack on life itself, Counsel Thurston began his quotations of law in denial of the first seven counts constituting impeachment offenses.

Mr. Thurston challenged the House managers to ente any case—English or American—which was sufficiently similar to the Swayne case to be used in support of their accusations. He said such a case did not exist.

Counsel belittled all the charges in turn and claimed none of them had been proven. On the point of legal expenses up to $10 a day, he asked where was the proof that he had violated the law. Who proof that he had violated the law. Who could say what were a judge's expenses for doctor bills and for other necessities from time to time? Did the law contemplate that a judge should be separated from his wife and family in order to serve the State and nation?

Arguing along these lines counsel interpreted the law to mean that a judge is entitled to draw expenses not only up to, $10 a day, but even in excess of that sum, provided his entire allowance in aby one year does not exceed a total

At 12:40 o'clock Counsel Thurston, after having spoken two and one-half hours, concluded his defense in behalf of the respondent.

Manager De Armond, taking the same position Mr. Thurston had occupied at Mr. Spooner's desk, presented his argument in favor of conviction.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form, or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much-improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath, and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth, and ihroat, I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but 25 cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."
